Fraud and Scam Response
Central Dispatch

Being the victim of a fraud or scam can be devastating. We thank you for reporting this incident to us. Additionally, it is important that you report the details to the additional authorities referenced in the video below. It is best if you report this information to them directly.

We have a brief video, roughly 8 minutes in length, to provide information about how to report the details of your incident, and to whom you should report. The video also provides support and counseling resources to those who have been the victim of fraud and scams. Here is a link to the video, or you can use the QR code below to watch the video.

[Insert your Central Dispatch link to the video]

[Insert QR code for the link]

Note that if financial institutions, such as your bank, credit union, or credit card company, were involved in the fraud, you should contact them immediately as well.

Time is of the essence, and you should report to the authorities referenced in the video in less than 24 hours. However, even if more time has elapsed, report anyway. Your incident may be part of a larger criminal investigation, and your report may help others from becoming victims.